In her presentation, Mirjam Mencej will talk about her personal experience of applying for an ERC (European Research Council) Advanced Grant project. She will give some tips on how to apply for ERC projects, starting with the criteria for the Principal Investigator that the applicant must fulfil, the choice of the topic of the project proposal, the structuring of the project proposal, what to pay attention to when writing the ERC project, how to formulate project objectives. She will also talk about how to plan the timing of the project and the project team, up to how to formulate an overarching goal of the project, as well as the evaluation criteria and the evaluation phases.

Finally, she will present her ERC Advanced Grant project DEAGENCY (The role of the agency of the dead in the lives of individuals in contemporary society) from the perspective of its structure: topic, work packages, team, aim and objectives.
